The North Carolina Police Benevolent Association, Inc. and its members are pleased with the decision in the Trooper Sgt. Charles Jones case. The decision speaks for itself. Judge Morrison's ruling is consistent with the rule of law and constitutional protection of due process.

PBA will continue to represent the interests of our member, Sgt. Jones, through the appeal process and final decision in the case.

The North Carolina Police Benevolent Association, Inc. is a division of the Southern States Police Benevolent Association, Inc., a not-for-profit professional organization dedicated to improving the law enforcement profession. PBA members are full-time or retired employees of the various federal, state, county and municipal law enforcement and correctional agencies in North Carolina. This professional association, funded by membership dues and citizen contributions, provides legal, legislative, disciplinary and other representation to member officers as well as a salary replacement death benefit to members' beneficiaries. The PBA prohibits members from engaging in or condoning any strike by law enforcement officers, electing instead to represent members through aggressive political action.
