

From: eddie forsythe
To:
Date: Wed, October 27, 2010 5:40:07 PM
Cc:
Subject: very important comments

So a couple of things you need to know my dear...First..The reason a few girls are saying something to you about being out of class and spending time with me is simple...They are jealous and would do anything to trade places with you...You are very special to me for all the right reasons and today I had a lot of your female friends beg to get out of class and see me or hang out with me including ...She asked me at least 5 times to come with me and hang out in my office and of course finally I did go get her...When I was just at her game, she ran over to me before the game which was odd and gave me a big hug and said..."I really love you"...After the game she said it again and her mom came over and told me ... talks about me every night and often over the weekend saying stuff like I wonder what Mr Ed is doing..Her mom said she just loves you and we are so thankful to you for loving her back and taking care of her...So..do not give any thought or concern to any girl who makes a comment about spending time with me...They just want to be in your shoes and get all of my attention like I do with you...I am very attached to you and that will only end if you want it to...That would be a very bad day for me I can promise..So forget those crazy comments and I will only pull you out of class at times that will not be uncomfortable for you
Ok?

Second...this you will love...Today I spent some quality time with ... and he thanked me several times for talking to him..He and I are meeting again tomorrow to continue our talk...He really wants to talk and I am available for him..I told him there are at least 2 girls who have feelings for him and he needed to know that one girl has at least 2-3 boys she is flirting with and more if she had a chance..I did not give him a name and never would because I care a lot for her as well..You know who anyway but I can't tell him right now..maybe later...I then told him the second girl is someone I truly care for and he needed to know this young lady has strong feelings for him and I know the feelings are real and genuine..I told him this girl would never hurt him by talking to other boys while you two were together and would never lie to him or say things that were hurtful..I told him this girl is special to me because she is clearly the sweetest, prettiest, most fun girl in 8th grade and he would be very lucky to have her as his girlfriend..At this point he kept saying "who" over and over and I said I was not going to tell him right now because this very special girl asked me not to do or say anything right now..That is the kind of person she is..He kept asking who, who, please tell me and I said not now..I ended the talk by saying I would talk to this very cute girl tonight and let him know more Thursday..He also said, he certainly did not want to be with the other girl who was flirting with a lot of guys..He finally said..is this girl in 8th grade and I said yes..So my dear..he has no idea how you feel and if he is a smart guy he will figure it out..So remember what I said with the first paragraph and the second paragraph..My job right now (as long as you let me) is to take care of you...If you want me to stop...just say so and I will..but I hope that never happens...Love you as always..ed

Please delete all my emails and be sure to empty your trash so the emails are deleted permanently...Some of the names, etc..personal comments are for you only...Thanks sweetie